NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—(INS)—“Beer within six months.”

This is the “prosperity ahead” prediction of Colonel Jacob Ruppert, one of America's foremost brewers and a business man of some prominence. He is the owner not only of one of the biggest breweries in the country but also the New York American League baseball club.

Legalized beer in this country would mean a “general stimulus” to business, in the opinion of Ruppert.

About sixty industries in the United States will be benefited the moment beer is legalized, according to Ruppert, who said they would receive rush orders for machinery and supplies.
He believes the purchase by brewers of trucks, bottles, refrigerating apparatus and other equipment and supplies will run as high as $200,000,000 the first year beer is sold legally.

Already, in anticipation of favorable action by Congress on beer, the prominent brewers of New York, including Ruppert, and the brewers of other cities such as Chicago, St. Louis, Cincinnati and Milwaukee, are getting ready for the time when “happy days will be here again.” Vats are being overhauled, equipment replaced and unemployed workers told to “stand by” in the expectation of an acceleration of the brewery business.

Peter Doelger of the Peter Doelger Brewing Company, for example, is contemplating the erection of a new factory, probably to be situated on Long Island. The plant will have new kettles, new tanks and new bottling machinery.

Ruppert said legalized beer will help the farmers, the railroads and other transportation companies, the malt-ers, the hop growers, the coopers, keg manufacturers, glass and bottle makers, label designers, advertising agencies, power plants, makers of brushes and brooms, labeling glue factories, the manufacturers of crown bottle caps, truck builders and many other companies.

He himself will put more men to work, erect new buildings and spend millions of dollars for equipment.

“Plans are being drawn right now for extension and additions to my plant here,” Ruppert told International News Service. “The new buildings will cost $2,750,000. Contracts for these buildings will be entered into just as soon as beer of a reasonable alcoholic content is legalized.”

“In addition, I will spend $2,150,000 for machinery and equipment. Once beer is legalized I will put an additional 800 men to work in this brewery.”

Ruppert estimated that the additional freight shipments out of his New York plant when, and it, beer is

THE HEN KNOWS “IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE”

(By “The Stroller”)

In a recent sermon the Rev.
T. W. Smith, pastor of Hulme-ville M. E. Church, stressed the value of advertising, dwelling upon the boosting of church services and other church activities.

The hen and the goose were used in one illustration by the minister, to show the value of advertising. “When a goose lays an egg, that's the end of it as far as the goose is concerned. She goes away and says nothing about it, just because she is a goose.
But when a hen lays an egg she always tells the world about it.
She advertises her goods. And that is why, there has always been and is a much greater demand for chicken eggs than for goose eggs.”

AMY LANDS AT GOA

London, England, Nov. 16.—Streaking alone across the wastes of the Sahara, Amy Johnson, British aviatrix, landed at Goa, French West Africa, at 4.58 a. m. today. Goa lies approximately 1300 miles due south of Oran, Algeria, where the aviatrix started on the most hazardous leg of her attempted record-breaking flight to Capetown.
She hoped to make the 1500-mile flight from Oran to Niamey, French West Africa, without a stop. If she succeeded in this attempt, it would put her 24 hours ahead of the present London to Capetown flight record at present held by her husband, Captain James A.
Mollison.

GAGGED AND ROBBED

Phila., Nov. 16.—Thieves early today attacked Mr. and Mrs. G. Harrison Frazier, Jr., and a maid, in their palatial Chestnut Hill home, bound and gagged them and threatened them with torture when they refused to reveal the hiding place of their money and jewels. The thieves escaped with about $10,000 in jewelry and cash, leaving the victims helpless on the floor. Frazier is the son of George Harrison Frazier, the sugar magnate.
Mr. and Mrs. Frazier and the maid, Elizabeth Catlin, struggled for two and a half hours with their bonds.
Finally Mrs. Frazier managed to strike a match and burn the rope around her body. Quickly she released her husband and the maid and called the police.

Both the thieves appeared young.
They wore white masks and threatened to burn the feet of their victims unless they revealed the hiding place of their jewels and money. Frazier was the first to be attacked by the thieves. They jumped from behind a sofa in his home, upon his return early today. He was bound and gagged.
Hearing the noise, his wife, who was upstairs, came down to investigate.
The thieves clapped their hands over her mouth and she too was bound and gagged. Just as they were completing the job the maid appeared and likewise they bound and gagged her.

EXPLAINS MANAGEMENT OF COUNTY PRISON

Sheriff Gwinner Addresses Doylestown Rotarians On
The Subject

METHODS ARE CHANGED

DOYLESTOWN, Nov. 16.—Fifty percent of the prisoners in the Bucks County Prison get there for violations of the liquor laws, Sheriff Horace E.
Gwinner told the Rotary Club of Doylestown, in a very interesting talk about the operation of the prison.

Most of the prisoners, he said, run in age from 18 to 30. There are few elderly men, and at the present time there are no female prisoners.

Sheriff Gwinner, who was the first sheriff after the change from the fee system to the salary system, said that a great many changes have been made in the management of the county prison. Meals have been made more ample and varied than they were some years

Roosevelt to Leave Room Today, is Plan

By Raymond L. Borst
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 16.—(INS)— Well on the road to recovery from a mild attack of influenza, Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, president-elect, today planned to leave his room for the first time in five days and grapple with the state budget.

He will remain in the executive mansion until Saturday and then go to his Hyde Park home for the weekend. Unless there is a last minute shift in his plans he will leave for Warm Springs, Ga., next Tuesday morning, stopping at Washington that afternoon for a conference with President Hoover on international debts and kindred subjects.

The Governor does not expect his White House conference will take more than a few hours. He intends to let the President do most of the talking and he has made it plain he will not commit himself or his administration to any decision on war debts.

It is expected Mr. Roosevelt will telephone President Hoover not later than Sunday regarding the time of his arrival in Washington. Indicating that he anticipated the White House conference would be a comparatively brief one, the Governor said: “I simply have to be in Warm Springs for Thanksgiving day dinner.”

Says Missing Dry Leader Slain

Arrested on a charge of swindling two New York business men, Ralph J. Code (right) is shown under arrest at Boston, where he told a sensational story, purporting to be an account of the missing Col. Raymond Robbins (inset), Chicago dry leader and intimate friend of President Hoover. According to Code, Col. Robbins was kidnapped in New York while enroute to Washington to lay certain information about New Jersey rum-runners before the President. The story then goes on to tell of Robbins being taken in a rum craft far out to sea, off Montauk Point, where he was bound hand and foot and thrown overboard. While police do not place full credence in Code's story, it warrants “deeper investigation,” it was announced.

COMMUNITY UNIT IS IDEAL OF EDUCATORS

Something to Be Worked for During Next Five Years

PROPOSAL IS SUBMITTED

This is the second of a series of articles dealing with recommendations for changes in the Pennsylvania public school laws.)

By Joseph A. Loftis
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

HARRISBURG, Nov. 16.—(INS)— Deciding upon the community unit of school administration as one of the first goals toward which it will press, the commission for the study of educational problems has before it a three-fold proposal to make the plan effective.

The local unit committee of the committee of the commission, headed by Dr. J. Linwood Eisenberg, president of Slippery Rock State Teachers College, submitted the proposal at the recent education congress here, when recommendations for the revision of Pennsylvania's school laws to meet changing conditions were weighed.
The first item of the proposal suggests consolidation of school districts having less than 1,000 population.

Items two and three are provisionary steps looking toward eventual adoption of the local unit of administration of which the community unit is a vital part. The commission seeks to set up the ideal of the community unit as something to be worked toward during the next five or ten years.

These two items recommend that authority be given the county superintendents, in co-operation with district superintendents, and school boards involved, to proceed with the necessary surveys for the purpose of redistricting their counties into larger community school districts.

Members of the local unit committee believe the provision for surveys by county superintendents a most essential feature of the program, according to H. R. Vanderslice, superintendent of Allegheny schools, who participated in the discussion during the congress.
Provision is made for appeal to the state council of education for districts of less than 1,000 population where local conditions are such that no advantage would result from merging.

“More than seven-eighths of the districts of the state (2300 of the 2587) are too small to provide adequate educational opportunity economically and efficiently,” said S. H. Replogle, assistant superintendent in Allegheny County.

Adoption of the local unit proposals would mean the schools merged would be governed by an executive committee chosen each year by the community district directors. This committee would work with the county superintendent as an ex-officio member and secretary without vote, and have greater responsibilities, many of them taken from the state department of public instruction.

“The General Assembly convening in 1933,” said Dr. Francis B. Haas, of Bloomsburg, chairman of the committee on legislation and reorganization of school laws, “will give much attention to matters having to do with education, particularly from the point of view of the purposes to be served, the administrative machinery whereby these purposes are achieved, the sources for the purchase of education, and finally the distribution of that part of the cost which is generally designated as state aid.”

Men's Day will be observed at Second Baptist Church Sunday.

in one act, for presentation in the Little Theatre Guild tournament, which is to be held in the auditorium of Junior School No. 3, Trenton, N. J., Nov. 30th and Dec. 1st.

There are eight different organizations entered in this contest, which will be judged: 25% for play value, 25% for stage settings; and 55% for interpretation.

The cast of the Yardley playlet will include: Mrs. Cora Long Holeslaw, “Maude”; Miss Marion Jane Renbe, “Miss Wells”; William M. Welch, 2nd; “Mr. Slovisky”; John E. Bilbee, “Mr. Jackson”; Chester Gill as “Henry” the office boy.

The play is being coached by Mrs.
Ammon B. Kaufman, who is assisted by the dramatic committee of the civic club which includes: Mrs. B. Warner Shay, Miss Helen W. Leedom, Mrs.
William M. Welch, 2nd, Mrs. Algernon S. Cadwallader, and Mrs. Francis B.
Barnett.

The committee in charge of stage settings and scenery includes: Miss Helen W. Leedom, C. Robert Southworth, H. Holeslaw, Mrs. William M.
Welch, 2nd.

Twenty-Three Gather At Taylor Home for Meeting

Sunday School Class of Bristol M. E.
Church of which Mrs. David O. Taylor is teacher, held a meeting at the Taylor residence last evening. After the regular business was transacted, refreshments were served to the 23 members present, and games then enjoyed.

Hostesses were: Mrs. Francis Ellis, Mrs. Frank Hampton, Miss Ann Heritage.

Dr. H. C. Leonard To Speak To Epworth Leagues

The regular bi-monthly rally of Bristol Group of Epworth Leagues will occur at Newtown M. E. Church, Friday evening, at 8.15.

Dr. H. C. Leonard will be the speaker of the evening. Dr. Leonard is secretary of the Board of Home Missions, and being in touch with the missionary work of the Methodist Church, he will be enabled to give a vivid picture of that side of church life.

The banners will be awarded for best group song, largest group in attendance, and for percentage of members present.

AUTO GETS NEW OWNER 23 TIMES IN 26 MONTHS

HARRISBURG, Nov. 16.—The record section of the Bureau of Motor Vehicles reports a car that has had a new owner at least every one and a half months since 1929. It holds the State and, perhaps, the national championship for frequent change of ownership.

The private history of the car is veiled in mystery. It made its first appearance in the official records of August 16, 1929, when it was titled as a new car. To date it has run the gauntlet of twenty-three assignments, an average of one and a half months in the possession of each owner.

The car was purchased new for $500. Included in the twenty-three assignments are six instances in which it was financed for an aggregate sum of $1200. In addition, down payments total more than $2,000. In four of the six financing operations, the car was subsequently repossessed by a finance company.

This shifting ownership has netted the State $25 in title fees; $25 in registration fees, and $10 in transfers of registration fees.

“Rackety Rax” Opens At Grand For Two-Day Run

“Rackety Rax,” reported to be a roaringly funny football riot, shows at the Grand Theatre today and tomorrow. Victor McLaglen, Greta Nissen and Nell O'Day have the principal roles. The Fox comedy depicts the hilarious adventures of a group of sport racketeers who muscle their way into college football with results that are unexpected and disastrous.

Broadway show girls, night club habitués and the co-eds of Canarsie College all provide plenty of interest.
Marjorie Beebe has the role of a ferocious racketeer's wife who writhes with anger whenever she sees her husband's “sweetie,” a role played by the platinum blonde beauty, Greta Nissen.
Esther Howard is cast as “Sister Carrie,” an evangelist who serves tea and cakes to the clubwomen but at heart is just a racketeer's gigolette.

Others in the cast are Arthur Pierson, Allan Dinehart, Allen Jenkins, Vincent Barnett, Ivan Linow and Stanley Fields. The direction is by Alfred Werker, and the adaptation is from the highly successful book by Joel Sayre.

Half-back boxers, wrestlers made over into tackles, gorillas who become guards, and Broadway belles who go collegiate and become campus co-eds are said to furnish plenty of fun in “Rackety-Rax.”

McLaglen is said to have a role which is funnier than the parts he had in “The Cock-Eyed World” and “What Price Glory.” Feminine interest is reported as strong throughout the comedy with Greta Nissen, Norway's pretty platinum blonde as a tenderloin sweetie; and Nell O'Day, musical comedy personality girl, as a pretty and smart young newspaper woman.

Football bowls and stadia, as well as scenes from many of the best known universities in the country, are used as backgrounds for “Rackety-Rax.”

Man Reported Held For Fire at Bustleton

Bucks County Fire Marshal William L. Stackhouse, Halmerville, will investigate today the report that a Newtown resident, Howard Bethel, 24, is being held on a charge of setting fire to the barn of Edward Foster, Bustleton, yesterday. It is stated that Foster's son, Charles, found Bethel in the barn, and that when ordered to leave the Newtown man tossed a match into the hay.

Stackhouse will also check up Bethel's activities, in an endeavor to learn if he is connected with several recent fires in the Newtown area.

HOOVER AGAIN AT HOME FACES DEBT PROBLEMS

Congress at Boiling Point on Subject of European Debts

PLUNGE INTO THE WORK

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 16.— President Hoover returned to the capitol today to face the united demands of European debtors for postponement or cancellation of payments due pending downward revision of the debts as a whole, and a congress that is almost 100 per cent hostile to the proposal.

Under the circumstances, it is believed Mr. Hoover can do little else than reject the European debtors and project the whole question into the new Democratic administration which comes into power next March.

There will be no final determination on this point however, until Mr.
Hoover has conferred with President-elect Roosevelt at the White House next Tuesday.

Congress is at the boiling point on the whole subject of the debts.

President Hoover arrived in Washington at 8.30 o'clock this morning and went immediately to the White House to plunge into the work which has filled up during his absence in California.

Vice-President Curtis and most of the members of the cabinet and several hundred others congregated in the concourse of the Union Station and gave Mr. Hoover a cordial welcome.

The President shook hands all around with the cabinet members and boarded the waiting limousine.

He appeared cheerful and glad to be back in the capitol.

Husband's Avenger

Mrs. Rose Gonzales, of Yonkers,

York. Both accused deny knowledge of the crime.

MINSTREL, TWO SKETCHES SCHEDULED TWO NIGHTS

“Radio Flivver,” and “Rainbow of Husbands” Add to Minstrel Show

BENEFIT OF ST. JAMES'S

A big bill of entertainment features awaits the large crowds expected at St. James's P. E. parish house this evening and tomorrow evening, when the program will call for a minstrel show and two sketches.

Interlocutor is David Landreth, the circle being comprised of a galaxy of those known for their musical ability and display of keen wit. The circle includes: Percy Ford, Russell Ellis, Andrew MacArthur, David Neill, Horace Schmidt, Mrs. Glenn Thompson, Mrs.
Roy Ott, Mrs. Warren Thompson, Mrs.
David Neill, George Irwin, Cyril Heaton, John Brehm, Herman Schmidt, William Marshall. The end men are those two laughmakers, Charles Rathke and Frank Phipps.

And the program: Minstrel overture, entire company; “When Mother Played the Organ,” William Marshall; “A Sentimental Gentleman from Georgia,” Frank Phipps; “I'll Never Be the Same,” Cyril Heaton; “The Little Old Church in the Valley,” Mrs. David Neill; “A Dream” (Barton), John Brehm; “My Silver Rose,” Mrs. Glenn Thompson; “A Shanty in Old Shanty Town,” Percy G. Ford; “You're Telling Me,” Charles Rathke; “Mississippi River,” Andrew MacArthur; “An Evening in Caroline,” finale.

Those holding tickets and those hoping to obtain such are not only looking forward to the first-class minstrel by those versed in the art, but are anxious to witness the skit, “Radio Flivver,” and a farce-comedy in one act, “Rainbow of Husbands.”

The cast of the latter: Ned Dodge, young owner of a hotel, Horace Schmidt; Jack Moon, a friend of Ned's, Cyril Heaton; Rose Dodge, Ned's recent bride, Mary McAuley; Henry DeVine, switchboard operator, Rose Stevenson; Mrs. I. M. A. Gossip, a friend, Mrs. Warren Thompson.
A peppy orchestra of six pieces will be on hand to provide music, the players being: Keith Rosser, Russell Un-ruh, Wallace Keeler, Mathias Summers, George Heaton and Lewis Smith.

William T. Mackey Dies At Office in Woodbourne

William T. Mackey, of 5202 Morris street, Germantown, widely known as an educator, was stricken with a heart attack and died yesterday in the office of the Middletown Tax Collector at Woodbourne, Bucks County. Mr. Mackey had gone there to pay taxes on his summer home at Parkland, near South Langhorne. He was 52 years old.

Mr. Mackey tutored Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh when the colonel was 14 years old. Colonel Lindbergh's father was then Representative in Congress from Minnesota. He had taught members of President Hoover's family and had been a tutor in the home of the late Julius Rosenwald. He formerly was a member of the Germantown High School faculty and recently had been engaged as a tutor in the Alfred I. du Pont family, of Wilmington.

Mr. Mackey was a cousin of former Mayor Harry A. Mackey. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Ethel H. Mackey, and two daughters, Jean and Agnes, and a son, William.

EDGELEY GUILD IS CONTINUING ITS YEARLY ADVANCE

At Annual Exhibit Yesterday Displays 1,586 Garments

IS AN INCREASE OF 219

Dire Need Throughout Country is Told by Prominent Speakers

EDGELEY, Nov. 16.—The dire need throughout the country, with Philadelphia being stressed in particular, was brought to the women, numbering nearly 100, gathered at “Shadyside,” the home of Mrs. Thomas G. Hawkes, yesterday afternoon. The occasion was the sixth annual exhibit of the Edgely Branch of the Needlework Guild of America.

The members of this guild and their friends who have known of and been working to alleviate suffering today have a bigger vision of the good the 1,586 garments made and collected this year will do. The total surpassed by 219 the number shown at last year's display. The warm garments, of splendid quality and excellent workmanship, with attractive colors for the dresses, blouses, suits, aprons, and other pieces, will help many a person in need in the months to come.
Some will be presented to institutions and families in Bucks County, while many will be forwarded to hospitals, homes, and other institutions throughout Pennsylvania and other states.

Mrs. Walter G. Stillwell, president of the Edgely branch, presided at the meeting, calling for the reports of the secretary, Mrs. William O'Dea, and of the treasurer, Mrs. Herbert Banes, both of which were excellently rendered.
The guests were warmly welcomed by Mrs. Stillwell and invited to examine the garments closely. She stated that last year the sewing committee made and purchased 450 garments, but that this year the total was increased to 524. “We aim for quality rather than quantity,” remarked the leader of this group which has secured both. The president called attention to the untiring efforts of the sewing committee, and spoke of the dreams for instituting a junior section. Mrs. William O'Dea will have charge of sewing among the juniors, while Mrs. William K. Highland will oversee the knitting and crocheting.

Miss Rosamond K. Bender, national secretary of the Needlework Guild of America, who is located at the national executive office in Philadelphia, was the first speaker. “You are not only a local organization,” Miss Bender told the workers, “but you are working with other nations of the world in this work.” She told of the nearly two million garments collected in this country last year by the guild branches, and added that there are 750 branches in the United States. The simplicity of the work, with the fact that anyone becomes a member by contributing two new garments was given as an important factor in the growth and maintenance of the guild.

The Edgely Branch was congratulated upon going ahead each year in number of garments. Numerous details showing interest among the colored race were given by Mrs. Bender, as well as activity among Camp Fire Girls, Boy and Girl Scout troops, and juniors. “The guild is incorporated to collect and distribute only new garments and household linens,” she told, and in ending her remarks left the thought “The greatest thing in the world is humanity, and the greatest need is love.”

Miss Edith McComb, social service director of St. Christopher's Hospital, Kensington, Philadelphia, brought a helpful and encouraging message. She gave a brief history of the institution she represents, mentioning that it is one of the oldest hospitals for children in this country. It is located in the industrial section of Philadelphia, where a great need is manifest particularly at this time. There are 75 beds, and children are accepted ranging up to 14 years of age.

IT COULD HAVE BEEN WORSE

Preparatory to digging itself out of the economic cave-in, the nation is taking account of its injuries and the wreckage, with results that are more encouraging than most people had supposed. The more pessimistic are already convinced that things could have been worse.

For instance, Rhode Island escaped without a single bank failure, and Delaware, Nevada and New Mexico came through with but one failure. Vermont had but two. And yet it has been heard that the country's banking system failed utterly in the crisis. It stood up surprisingly well, considering everything.

Banking laws will be scrutinized by every state legislature before this depression finishes its final chapter. One of the questions that will be asked is why some states escaped almost if not wholly unscathed whereas others saw hundreds of their financial institutions go to the wall. Lawmakers will take it for granted that the answer lies in a difference in banking laws.

In the final analysis it may be found that the relative immunity of certain states was due not so much to better banking laws and supervision but to less inflation before the crash. Sections where real estate values soared the highest and where business expansion and residential development were most pronounced were the first to suffer bank troubles when the bottom fell out of things. Their banks had gone along with them in their prosperity and went down with them when the end came.

DEGREES BY ROUTINE

The doctor's degree in American universities, now practically a necessary qualification to obtain a teaching position in a college or university, has become little more than a professional trade-union label.

The graduate student in a university is like the apprentice in a printing shop, serving a prescribed term before he will be allowed to earn the full union scale. He may know as much as a full-fledged Ph. D.; he may be a better teacher, but until he gets his degree he cannot have his full title or salary.

This is one of the penalties of standardization in higher education. Valuable men and women are lost to education, and, doubtless, some less to joy on their title.

Colleges and universities are turning to personality tests with which to supplement the old mechanical entrance examinations. The problem has not been solved even for when the students it would be even more difficult to apply to the would-be teachers. The question is: what is needed—more of cutting out the other fellow's nose, or something else?—and, of course, whether the test is a product of the machine or the human mind.

Behind all the various experiments in methods of education looms one central fact—the need for men who are really teachers. No degree will ever guarantee that essential quality.

Anything can happen. But not enough things do.

Instead of laying the slump to unrest let's lay it to rest.

A delinquent taxpayer isn't news, but a late tax-eater would be.

Daphne by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

CHAPTER LXII.

SHE ripped open the last envelope. It contained a little wad of pencilled memos, all covered with neat figures. Something about the money at last. That would please Mr. Greely. Just her luck that she left it for the last.

She copied two slips, neatly and accurately before their full significance dawned on her. Why, these were records of money turned over to Ralph, records of money Allan had drawn from the bank for him—fifty dollars, five hundred, two thousand.

Her fingers flew through the pile. Hundreds of thousands of dollars.

But if Ralph had this money, how could he say that Allan—that Allan took it? Her pulses began to race. Her breath came in painful panting gusts. Her face was crimson. Ralph must have known—

She began to cry softly then, like a child who has stumbled upon some dread secret in the dark. "What will happen now? What will they do when they find out?"

Her teeth were chattering so that she could hardly talk when, with her back to the wall, and her eyes still glued on the mute slips on the desk, she got Mr. Greely's house, and asked for him.

Henry answered, in the high, nasal tone he had adopted years ago to discourage hysterical women who demanded to speak to the Master. "No, he isn't in. I couldn't say—probably not until late."

Daphne hung up the receiver, still crying weakly. She couldn't stay there—she couldn't wait for Mr. Greely to come back. She thought of Allan—a fugitive in the eyes of the law.

Ralph even called him—a "bird"—when he knew, he knew that Allan was innocent! He boasted, even last night, of all he had done for Allan, when all the while he had done this thing to him, this terrible thing.

Daphne had never been in Ralph McKevitt's apartment though she had passed it often enough, on her solitary walks. She never knew just how she got there now, or why she had come—except that she had to come, she had to tell him.

When she had rung a long time his sleepy voice answered—"Well, who is it?"

"It's I—Daphne—You must let me come up—I've got to see you!"

"Daphne—For heaven's sake—wait—wait a minute—I'll be down and tell you in."

It was the usual furnished flat, with the four ancient advertisements on the fireplaces, a heavy Chesterfield backed up against a long table with a lamp at one end, and a flower bowl without any flowers in it, at the other. Bridge lamps and occasional tables, and a general air of nobody home.

Ralph McKevitt, for that matter, was seldom home. He was home today because he was trying to sleep off the effects of last night's party.

He looked at Daphne now with eyes that were at once drowsy and suspicious. "Well, sit down," he said, not too graciously. "Now that you're here you may as well be comfortable. Excuse the get-up—" with an apologetic wave towards his dressing gown. "I drowned my sorrows after you left me last night, and I'm a little under the weather still."

He noticed she was swaying a little, that her small face was colorless except for her reddened nose and swollen eyes, and she kept clasp and unclasp her hands. Plainly she was hysterical. She'd have to be—timid, goody, good Daphne, before she'd burst in on him like that!

"Sit down," he said again. "You don't look any too well yourself."

He said as lightly as he could, and went and stood by her chair, hands in his pockets.

She shuddered, and something pathetically childish about the curve of her bent white neck, and the soft dark hair above it, touched him.

He patted her shoulder. "Come now, Daphne, don't be hysterical. Haven't we all been pretty good friends? Did you decide you love me a little—just that?"

She Sprang Up Then and Faced Him, Albrecht With Fury.

Have something to drink? Just a little drink?"

She shook her head, and watched him with eyes heavy with tears, while he poured himself a drink, and swallowed it with a mumbled, "Here's to crime!"

"Here's to crime!" How could he joke about such a thing? How could he joke about anything? Didn't he care? Wasn't it anything to him that Allan—his best friend—was suffering, disgraced—while he went free? Daphne's lip curled in disgust.

She groped for her handkerchief, and pressed it nervously to her mouth, suddenly terribly afraid that she was going to be sick. Her hands were so cold, and clammy, and her head was so hot.

And all the while Ralph McKevitt watched her, curiosity and a mounting, nameless fear chasing themselves across his handsome, faintly dissipated face. What ailed the girl? Had she come to upbraid him about Crystal? What had she found out? "But there isn't anything to find out!" he thought, with satisfaction. "Nobody could say a thing against us."

"Well, what did you have to see me about? It must be important," he said as lightly as he could, and went and stood by her chair, hands in his pockets.

When she did not answer at first, he came a little nearer. She sprang up then and faced him, albrecht with fury. He couldn't believe it.

"Well—ray," he began, and "For heaven's sake, what's the matter?" Her face was livid, her voice choked with hiccupping sobs. A torrent of words shook her, poured over him before he collected his wits enough to listen.

Was this Daphne? This white-faced fury? It couldn't be! He missed the import of her first burning incoherent words. Slowly it dawned on him. She was accusing him. Accusing him of ruining Allan Winters, to save himself.

"You're crazy!" he said and tried to smile, but his lips were so dry he couldn't.

He put his hands to his throbbing temples and wished the pounding would stop, so that he could think. "You've given me a fine headache!" he whispered resentfully. "Coming here with a cock and bull story like that. You ought to be ashamed of yourself!"

Mothers find relief from the burden of colds

When Colds THREATEN

With new VICKS PLAN for better CONTROL-OF-COLDS

IF A Cold DEVELOPS

THE PROOF...in Results!..
In clinical tests among thousands last winter in schools, colleges and homes—Vicks Colds-Control Plan cut the number and duration of colds in half—saved almost two-thirds of the time lost from school due to colds!—reduced the costs of colds more than half!...The satisfaction of hundreds of thousands of enthusiastic users confirms these tests.

Vicks Colds-Control Plan was introduced last winter, along with the new aid in preventing colds—Vicks Nose & Throat Drops. This new formula is the ideal companion to Vicks VapoRub, standby of mothers for two generations in treating colds—externally.

Together with certain simple rules of health, these preparations form Vicks Plan for better Control of Colds. How you can follow it in your home is fully explained in each Vicks package.

BRIEFLY, HOW VICKS PLAN WORKS

When colds threaten—At that first feeling of stuffiness or nasal irritation—Nature's usual signal that a cold is coming on—use Vicks Nose Drops at once! They soothe the irritation and aid Nature's functions in throwing off the infection that threatens. They prevent development of many colds.

If a cold has developed, Vicks VapoRub—(now available in Stainless form, if you prefer)—is the proved, dependable treatment. Just rubbed on throat and chest at bedtime, its double action—continuing through the night—brings quicker, surer relief. Use of the Nose Drops during the day adds to comfort—helps shorten the cold.

HARD WORK-OUTS ON FOR HIGH-ALUMNI TILT

(By Oscar Corn)

In order to make its football season a success, the Bristol high school Cardinal and Gray eleven must win its final two games; first the Alumni tilt, and then the annual game with Morrisville.

This week Coach Dougherty plans to work mainly in perfecting his aerial attack, which he plans to work against the alumni. The line will work on blocking while the backs will drill mainly on passing.

This Saturday the "old Grads" will assemble on the high school field, and endeavor to accomplish what they failed to do last year; namely, hand the high school eleven a setback.

As yet the Alumni manager has not made any official reports as to plays and players. It is rumored, however, that they are going to even have a stronger team than ever before.

This coming fray is something to look forward to.

Down the Bowling Alleys

In a league match postponed two weeks ago the Amlison team took the American Legion over for three points last night, making the race a little closer.

Harry Ratcliffe was high with 565, while Stewart rolled the only 200 game of the match.

Davis Certificate To Carry A Qualification

HARRISBURG, Nov. 16.—(INS)—Although Gov. Clifford Pinchot steadfastly refuses to discuss what action he will take, it is generally expected at the capitol that he will issue a certificate of election to Senator James J. Davis, but that it will carry a qualification of some kind.

This belief today is based chiefly on the statement the Governor made last August when he demanded that Republican leaders substitute a candidate for Davis because the latter was "under suspicion" growing out of his indictment on charges of violating the Federal lottery laws.

Governor Pinchot at that time said emphatically that Senator Davis "will never be allowed to take his seat for the full term." The Executive wanted a "clean Republican" run on a pre-empted ticket.

He recalled then that he had given William S. Vare an election certificate in which he charged that the election "had been partly bought and partly stolen" and that he would never be allowed to take his seat in the Senate.

Davis, unlike Vare then, is now a sitting Senator. Whether or not that will influence the Senate's action is uncertain. At the time of Vare's election, Governor Pinchot had been badly beaten as a candidate for the seat at the primary election. Davis defeated Gen. Smedley D. Butler, the Pinchot candidate, at the recent primary.

If Senator Davis is acquitted of the charges against him, the Governor still can include a review of them in an election certificate. Inclusion of any such reservations would result in a "certificate of doubt."

Announce the Winners Of Card Party Prizes

The Knights of Columbus held a card party in the K. of C. home last evening where nine tables of pinochle and four of "500" players enjoyed games.

Winners in "500": Angelina Riley, 3930; Maude Gallagher, 3540; E. H. Middleton, 3509; Katherine Strong, 3330; Mrs. E. H. Middleton, 3330. Pinochle high scorers were: Joseph McGlynn, 846; Mrs. M. Keating, 816; Frances McPadden, 798; Mrs. W. Armstrong, Jr., 776; William Ennis, 758.

CARD PARTY SCORES

High scores at the card party conducted Monday evening by Lily Rebekah Lodge, No. 366, were as follows: H. Ashby, 810; E. Heaton, 804; T. Walter, 788; L. Sugalski, 772; K. Bennett, 747. Pinochle was the game played.

others we must help, and we find the guild garments most helpful."

Dr. Boyer Drake, a member of the staff at St. Christopher's, and who is in charge of the Northern Home for Friendless Children, Philadelphia, brought greetings, and caused pleasure and amusement among the gathering when he told of how the nurses "pounce upon the Needlework Guild bag," and then informed of "Johnnie's" and "Mary's" swaggering when new garments from the guild bag are received.

Refreshments of home-made cake, coffee and salted nuts were served by the members of the Edgely Guild.

MEETING TONIGHT

All members of the degree team of Lily Rebekah Lodge are requested to attend a meeting tonight at 8 o'clock in I. O. O. F. Hall, Radcliffe street.

ago, much more recreation has been provided, disciplinary measures have been improved—and as a result there has been very little difficulty. The Sheriff, while he does not mingle much with prisoners, says he has found that there is some good in every prisoner if an effort is made to bring it out.

Changing from the fee system, said the Sheriff, has been found more economical for the county, and has enabled the county to be more generous with prisoners with respect to living conditions.

Prisoners are given opportunity for recreation in a special yard provided for baseball and quolls, and with a radio for entertainment in the evenings. They are given an opportunity to get physical exercise by cracking stone, and this year have broken between 400 and 500 tons in the jail yard. In addition the men work in a vegetable garden and help in the canning of what is grown.

Among the other improvements made in the prison, Sheriff Gwinner explained, are the substitution of washing machines for the more primitive methods, with the result that the clothing lasts longer. Another is the making of most of the repairs with prison labor as there usually are mechanics among the inmates who are glad to get an opportunity to exercise their skill. Baking by prison labor, however, has been abandoned as it was not always possible to get good bread, nor economical.

Still other improvements, he said, the removal of the juvenile detention rooms from the jail, and the substitution of blue shirts and striped overalls as uniforms.

This year there have been 460 prisoners in the prison. In his service, the speaker said, he has taken three murderers to the death house, all of them hoping to the last.

The visiting day is Saturday when each prisoner may be seen for half an hour through a screen to prevent the slipping of anything prisoners should not have to them by friends.

BENSALEM TOWNSHIP

A bake sale will be held in the cafeteria of Bensalem Township high school tomorrow at 3.45 p. m. There will be hot cinnamon buns and angel food cake, also other kinds of cake, candy, and pies. The proceeds of the sale will go to the senior orchestra and will be spent for music.

The Bensalem high football squad visited Lower Moreland and lost the game, 12-0. On Friday, Nov. 18, Bensalem will meet Morrisville on the home field.

Legalizing Beer Would Stimulate Business, He Says

legalized, will amount to 1,300 carloads a year.

Running at 75 per cent of his beer output of pre-prohibition days Colonel Ruppert would use in one year 2,000,000 bushels of grain; 1,500,000 pounds of hops; he would require 175 new trucks which would represent an additional investment of $1,000,000 and he would make many other expenditures.

Inquiries are pouring into Ruppert and other brewers regarding their probable purchases in the event Congress legalizes beer, for example, from the rubber town of Akron, O., came a telegram from Dow W. Harter asking Ruppert what would be his immediate requirements for truck tires, rubber hose and rubber boots in the event the Volstead Act was modified to permit the manufacture of "wholesome beer."

Colonel Ruppert wired the Akron man as follows:

"I shall immediately require and purchase 175 new trucks and two extra tires each and also one hundred sets of tires for present fleet. This means an immediate requirement of 2,000 truck tires at a cost of $80,000.

"I will employ about 800 additional men, 500 of whom will need boots. It is reasonable to expect the brewing industry would immediately require at least fifty times my requirements representing a total outlay for tires of four million dollars."

There are 167 de-alcoholizing plants (breweries manufacturing cereal beverages) in this country. Before prohibition the United States had about 1,200 breweries. About 80,000 men were employed in these breweries alone. The total sales of beer in one year, 1914, ran up to 65,000,000 barrels. 14,000,000 barrels of which were sold by New York states breweries.

Ruppert is of the opinion that from $399,000,000 to $400,000,000 is "a conservative estimate" of the probable income to the United States Government on a tax of $6 a barrel from beer.

"Farmers of the country, he said, would sell from 60,000,000 to 70,000,000 bushels of barley a year more than they are now selling. He pointed out that it had been testified before a Senate committee by men of the Chicago Board of Trade that the price of barley would also show an advance, a factor which would tend to help the farmer back toward prosperity.

Today the breweries are being besieged by advertising agents, bottle salesmen, lithograph salesmen, brewery workers and others asking about "the situation." Representatives of investment bankers are also making inquiry on the probable effect on certain industries and stocks in the event the breweries of the nation are re-opened.

Asked how soon he expected the American public to have their beer back, Ruppert said:

"I am much encouraged to believe as a result of reports coming to me that favorable action will be taken by the present Congress which would mean the legalizing of beer within six months."

Chesterfields are Milder

Chesterfields Taste Better

You know how it is. If a cigarette is mild—that is, not harsh or bitter, but smokes cool and smooth—then you like it and don't worry about how many or how often you smoke. And if it tastes right—that is, not oversweet, not flat—then you enjoy it all the more. The right kind of ripe, sweet Domestic and Turkish tobacco... the right ageing and blending... make Chesterfields milder, better-tasting... They Satisfy!
